GEORGE W. FELGER, Observer Weather Bureau. BOARD OF PHARMACY.

Detailed Statement of Its Work During the Year.

Lassino, July 26 .- The state board of pharmacy has filed its annual report for the year ending June 30, 1892, with Governor Winans. During the year the board examined 375 applicants for certificates as registered pharmacists and 36 as registered assistant pharmamaciets, and granted certificates to 164 of the former and 84 of the latter. The apparent excess in the number of the the number of applicants examined is due to a rule of the board under which assistants' certificates are granted to those who desire them among the class who fail to pass a full and entisfactory examination, yet pass sufficiently high to warrant the board in issuing them certificates as assistants. The total recespts of the year were $5,459, and came from the following sources: From re-serve fund in state treasury, $1,500; from renewals of certificates, $2,982; from applicants for examination, $977.
The disbursements as per report of state board of auditors were $3,704.81, leaving a balance of $1,754.19. The tool number of full certificate in force July 1, 1891, was 2,951; assistants, 269. The number added during the year was 164 and eighty-four respectively and the number dropped eighty-two and sixty-seven, leaving a total of 3,033 full certificates and 286 assistant certificates in force July 1, 1891. During the year seventy-five compaints for violation of the pharmacy laws were made, making the total number of complaints since the creation of the boad 368. Annzan, July 26 .- The action of the ter of not passing the resolution com-manding the marshal to enforce the Sunday closing law has aroused the citizens. Sunday petitions were circulated in all the churches asking the mayor to see that the charter wa compiled with and its ordinances en-forced. Long lists of signatures were secured to the prayer, and the thing will undoubtedly go through with a rush at the board's next meeting.

Unknown Dead at Owosso.

Owosso, July 26.—Workmen while engaged near the D., G. H. & M. railroad track, east of Owesso, this mora-ing found the body of an unknown man. A letter on the body seems to identify him as Frank P. Burt, a blacksmith of Pontiac. Several persons think they recognize him. It is sup-posed that he fell from a train, his neck being broken. His hat was found fifty feet from the remains. A coroner's jury is investigating the case.

Posr Huson, July 26,—Alexander Bossenberry of Zurich, Ont., who was arrested some time ago for hving in adultery with Mrs. Clars Wilson of the same place, was taken before Judge Vance in the circuit court today, where he pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to two years at hard labor in the state prison at Jackson. When sentence was pronounced he wept like a child.

Started in the Kitchen.

BELDING, July 26 .- The gueste in Hotel Unger were driven from their rooms last night by fire, escaping only with their fives. The fire started in the kitchen and grew rapidly, making in a very short time the entire hotel one mass of flames. The fire spread to adjoining buildings, and several were burned before the flames were controlled.

would reduce the business one-third, nearly all the states have a limit. In Louisana it is $2,000.

2. Repeal court amendment, section

10, article VI, requiring a written decision and its report in every case. Of our eighty-eight volumes, forty-four are in the last twelve years.

3. Restrict the original writ of mandamus now employed, even in criminal and equity cases to its common law use, i. e., when no other remedy known to the law exists.

3. Adopt the Wisconsin practice; abolish bills of exceptions; certify up the stenographers notes in full not to be printed; require the party removing the cause to prepare a case to which the opposite party may prepare amend-ments; the case and the amendments to be printed—not only would the su-preme court be enabled to handle its business, but the importance and character of the circuit courts would be in-creased and they would not be as now, often mere channels through which to get to the supreme court.

Justice McGrath's Opinion, A letter also from Justice McGrath of the supreme court, who could not be present, was read by Mr. O'Brien on the same subject. The letter is as fol-

"At the last January term we had fifty-four applications for mandamus. Forty-two orders to show cause were issued and that number of arguments were heard, and we had three applications for habeas corpus. At the April term the number of these matters was arger, but at the June term it was less. At least one half of our time out of court while at Lansing is given to the consideration of these matters, many of which involve important interests. The result is that when we reach the bearing of the calendar cases we are not as familiar with the records as we should be, hence can look wise, but are un-able to suggest the line of argument, as we otherwise might. Hence, in the less important cases much more time is as we otherwise might. Hence, in the less important cases much more time is taken up than ought to be, or than would be if we could direct the argument, and in the more important cases much time is taken up in getting a skeleton of the case before us and we are unable to suggest points to which are unable to suggest points to which counsel would devote themselves more at length if they could hear from the court. I know that arguments would case presented and of the questions raised by the record. So long as all the members of the bench sit continuously this same difficulty will present itself. I am not in favor of compelling the submission of cases upon brief.

Oral Aframents. "Oral arguments, if they can be directed to the doubtful points and to our own authorities, are a very great aid to the court. My own view is that the number of justices should be in-creased to nine and that five should constitute a quorum. Four members of the bench would then be preparing for hearings as well as writing up while the other fine would be upon the bench, and the court would sit until the docket was disposed of. The application for mandamus would be examined by those not sitting for that week and heard by them the next week. Under this system I have no doubt but that in the same time we could accomplish much more work, and what is more important, much better work. Our state is growing in population and in volume of its commercial and industrial interests. A large amount of business has been unloaded from the federal court into this court. The Forty-ninth Michigan closes up the year 1882, the eighty-ninth brings up to June 20, 1892. We have heard 360 calendar cases since January 5, 1892, in addition to 150 other matters, some of which have been of great public concern and im-portance. We ought not to try to do nore because it is of the utmost importance that the work done by the court be well done. To the members of the bar I would suggest that you shorten your bills of exceptions, give us in your brief a succinct statement of the case, index your records fully, marshal your exhibits, and refrain from reading briefs.

Can't Direct the Argument,
